In my mind, so many things could've gone wrong. I was worried that the paperwork we had for Avery wouldn't be processed properly, worried that he would be.

13 Jul 1994 . It was an aviation-age version of the classic cat-up-the-tree tale: Tabitha somehow escaped on June 30 from her carrier in the cargo hold of the plane on a New York-to-Los Angeles flight. The airline refused to take the plane out of service to search for the lost cat, instead deciding to look for her whenever.

You should accustom your cat to the carrier in the same way you would with the soft carrier. On the day of the flight, bring cat food, bowls and feeding instructions for the airport staff. Try to schedule morning or evening flights if traveling in warm weather so your cat remains comfortable. The airline probably will not accept cats.
