Duchamp agreed, and signed a urinal that the gallerist bought at a Parisian flea market. Image shows the urinal installed (above a doorway and decorated with mistletoe!) at a later Dada exhibition at Sidney Janis Gallery organized by Duchamp in 1953. Gift of Mrs. Herbert Cameron Morris to Philadelphia Museum of Art.

In January 1920, Duchamp made (again) an optical experiment with the assistance of Man Ray. Making us of the fact that the eye retains an image for a fraction of a second after it disappeared, he built a motorized machine, 'Rotary Glass Plates (Precision Optics)'. Segments of a circle were painted on five glass plates.

28 Apr 2015 . In the late 1930s, Marcel Duchamp struck upon the idea of presenting a history of his best works in a small, portable box. From this idea came the Boîte-en-valise, or "Box in a Valise," which eventually grew to a series of 300 boxes (in seven separate editions) filled with reproductions of his works.

20 Sep 2017 . Marcel Duchamp was a famous French-American painter, writer, sculptor and chess player. This biography provides detailed information about his childhood, life, career, works, achievements and timeline.

In March 1953, the Greenwich Village gallery owner Michael Freilich (RoKo Gallery) asked 28 year-old Victor Obsatz to photograph Marcel Duchamp in his apartment on West 14th Street. The resulting double-exposure print pleased Duchamp very much, as he chose it especially for the front and back covers of Robert.

When the French artist Marcel Duchamp arrived by ship to New York in 1915, his reputation, as the saying goes, preceded him. Two years earlier, in 1913, after an inauspicious debut in France, Duchamp sent his painting Nude Descending a Staircase (No. 2) to America. His now famous depiction of a body in motion.

In 1964, Calvin Tomkins spent a number of afternoons interviewing Marcel Duchamp in his apartment on West 10th Street in New York. Casual yet insightful, Duchamp reveals himself as a man and an artist whose playful principles toward living freed him to make art that was as unpredictable, complex, and surprising as life.
